

Why do kids get so many vaccines?

Because they need to be protected from serious diseases, like measles, whooping cough, polio, and more.

